'LINK' M'CANDLESS SEES FINE VICTORY FOR BOURBONS IN FALL

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

HILLO, July 31.—"If the Republican vote is badly split and the Democrats present a solid front, with unbroken ranks and the normal vote, there is an excellent opportunity for a Bourbon victory in the territory at the primary next September." This is the statement of L. L. McCandless, sole Democratic candidate for delegate, who arrived at Hilo yesterday for a ten or twelve-day campaign tour of the Big Island.

McCandless is accompanied by his wife and daughter, and by Dan Hoolapa and R. N. Boyd, the latter of whom was campaign manager for Delegate Wilcox in 1909. Mrs. McCandless and her daughter will remain at the volcano during the candidate's tour of Hawaii county, and he will be accompanied by Hoolapa and Boyd.

McCandless is cheerful and confident. Judging by his talk yesterday he evidently believes the Democrats have a better chance for victory this fall than at any time since he entered the lists as candidate for the delegateship. He announces that his campaign will be fought strictly along party lines, leaving the back-biting and bitter personal warfare to the other aspirants. He intends, weather permitting, to deliver speeches at the different points visited and on his return to Hilo, probably ten days hence, he likely will be the principal speaker at a Democratic rally in this city.

He says he is going to make use of the argument Delegate Kuhio has used the last few years with such evident success: "That the people of Hawaii should be represented at Washington by a man of the party in power there. President Wilson is good for two years yet, and he will be supported by a Democratic house and senate. If Hawaii wants favors it should have a man at Washington who will stand right with those in power."

The Bourbon candidate laughs at the futile efforts of the Rice adherents to drag Palmer P. Woods into the delegateship race. He does not think they can get Woods into it—in fact he seems absolutely positive that their persistent attempt will fail.

"In the present situation," says he, "Charles Rice stands very little chance to get the Republican nomination. From what I have learned I do not think he will even poll a very large vote at the primary. And of course I will be rather sorry if he does not, for it would divide the Republican ranks so much that I might get a majority of the ballots and win without entering the finals in November. But despite the bitter fight against him, led by the Honolulu newspapers, I believe Kuhio is destined to gather the great majority of the Republican votes and get the nomination."

McCandless intimated that his early activity in lining up the Democratic forces is due to the brightness of his prospects for winning the necessary majority at the primary polls. Otherwise there would be really no necessity for him to make a move until after the primary; he is the only Democratic candidate in the field, and one vote at the primary would be enough to put his name on the November ballot as nominee. It is this really good chance to win early that has induced him to bestir himself.

He will first visit Kau, then Kona and thence on around the big circle to Kohala, Waimea and finally Honokaa and the Hamakua district. In the last election Kuhio triumphed over McCandless in this and all the other islands save Oahu, by a majority of some 1200 votes; the latter's majority on Oahu was 850, cutting down the delegate's big lead. The Bourbon aspirant is sanguine, however, that the G. O. P.'s internecine strife has diminished Kuhio's strength here as elsewhere, many independent voters becoming disgusted at the Republican fight and swinging to the Democrats in consequence. This is virtually Link's first campaigning of the present year. He did a little "missionary" work on Oahu before coming to Hilo but as yet has not visited the other islands.

BEN HOLLINGER OUT FOR SUPERVISOR; HE WILL RUN AS REPUBLICAN

Ben Hollinger

Ben Hollinger, one of the best-known young men of the city and a prominent member of the St. Louis College Alumni, of which he is president, announces his candidacy for supervisor on the Republican ticket. His announcement says:

"To the voters of the City and County of Honolulu:

"The undersigned takes this opportunity to announce to the voters of the City and County of Honolulu that he is a candidate for the office of supervisor and will seek nomination as a Republican at the primary election to be held on September 12 next.

"In soliciting your support may I state that I have lived in Honolulu all my life, and for the last eight years have been in the employ of Honolulu contracting concerns, where I have been in intimate touch with public work, and I believe that I know the needs of the city and county, and if you honor me by electing me to office I pledge myself to support the Republican county platform and give to you my best efforts to the end that the next administration may be a credit to the city and county of Honolulu."

AN INVITATION

A dance will be given this evening in the dining room of the Moana hotel in honor of the officers of the cruisers South Dakota and West Virginia. Time does not permit the issuing of formal invitations, but it is hoped that the society folk as well as the ladies and officers of the army and navy will accept this general invitation and will join in entertaining the visitors who remain in the city only two days. Dancing commences at 9 o'clock.—advertisement.

"Who is that young fellow surrounded by an admiring crowd?" "That's a soldier who has seen service in Mexico." "You mean he fought down there?" "No. He pitched some baseball games and carried off several prizes in athletic contests."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Waiter, give me the menu." "We have none, but I can tell you what we have." "You must have a jolly good memory." "Not at all. I simply look at the table-cloth."—Pele Mele.

"Hang the Collars That Catch the Tie"

You've probably given voice to the sentiment frequently—perhaps more forcibly—and any other man will indorse all you've said.

The fault lies with the collar maker and the tie maker to a certain extent, and with your laundry afterward.

Our collar shaping machine leaves every collar we launder with an easy, free, tie-sliding space.

We want to do your work and you want us to—don't you?

MORE EFFICIENT POSTAL SERVICE FOR HONOLULU

Although official notification has not as yet been received by the local postoffice stating on what date the proposed additional carrier service for Honolulu will become effective, Postmaster W. F. Young is in receipt of private information from Washington, D. C., stating that the two additional carriers recommended by him for this city are to be granted by the postoffice department.

This information has come to Mr. Young from a personal friend in the national capital, who is in close touch with the working of the postoffice department.

"There is little doubt but what the recommendations have gone through," said the postmaster this morning. "The party from whom I received the information is in a position to know. I wish that I might be as certain regarding other matters as I am of that one. I think I can safely say that the order for additional carriers for Honolulu will go into effect during the latter part of September and not later than October 1."

Mr. Young added that it is yet too early to make predictions regarding his recommendations to the postoffice for the establishment here of postal sub-stations. Recommendations for two stations, to be located at Kal-muki, River and Pauahi streets, were forwarded to the national capital about two weeks ago. Other recommendations are to follow as soon as the necessary locations are decided upon and persons found to take charge of the proposed offices.

CHICAGO GAINS 195 LAWYERS IN YEAR

CHICAGO.—The thirty-eighth annual edition of the Chicago law directory contains the names of 5763 local attorneys. During the year 33 attorneys left the city, 98 ceased the practice of law, and 5 passed away, the Tribune reports.

About 434 new names have been added to the bar. While a large number of law students and outside attorneys have been admitted on licenses, the net increase is only 195—showing that lawyers are disappearing nearly as fast as increasing.
